The grand opening of spring and summer styles at the New York Saving store on West Milwaukee street, is a success, and is drawing a large crowd of ladies. Mr. Hood, the manager of the establishment, has a truly beautiful stock of goods on exhibition, consisting of all the new things in fine millinery, hosiery, laces, and fancy goods. The store is handsomely trimmed with flowers and other goods, shaped in such artistic manners as to attract the eye of all visitors. Our lady readers should not fail to visit this establishment during this opening exhibition, which will close on to-morrow evening.

That was a lively run the fire department made up West Milwaukee street, last evening, in going to the fire at the corner of Pleasant and High streets. The look and leader company were out first with their ropes well manned, and moved up the street about as fast as men are in the habit of stepping with such a load. In a few minutes No. 1's hose cart turned into West Milwaukee street, the horse at full speed; they were followed by the engine of the same company, and the No. 2's hose cart, while on the bridge, No. 2's engine was bringing up the rear. It was a race for all there was in men and horses, and it astonished all people on the street to see the department move with such speed in a drenching rain-storm. The firemen left their horses on a "wild call," not knowing where to go, and all supposed, after reaching Jackson street, that the fire, if there was any, was in Monterey. It seldom occurs that our department turns out in better time than that of last evening. Their work at the fire shows that they were on hand in good time, as the fire was extinguished before much of the building was destroyed.

THE CIRCUS.

The Heavy Rain Storm—A Good Show Thoroughly Attended—The Route of the Exhibition.

Again the elements were against Col. Burr Robbins, and the threatening weather which prevailed in the early evening and during the night, prevented our people from attending the initial performance of his great show, as they otherwise would have done. Notwithstanding the heavy rain which set in during the performance in the afternoon, and which continued until after midnight, several hundred of our citizens took their umbrellas and waterproofs and visited the exhibition in the evening, and although they were compelled to sit under this double shelter they were more than repaid.

The collection of animals and natural curiosities in this show this season is far ahead of any previous year. Col. Robbins having added many valuable animals during the winter. The cages and dens are all new, and just from the shops, presenting, as they do a grand panorama as they pass through the streets in parade, representing beautiful sketches in this and other countries, besides many fine paintings of animals. The circus is by far the best ever organized, and embraces scores of first class artists. Those who witnessed the performance last evening say it was beyond all question the best circus performance ever given in this city. The gymnastic performance by the Ashfords was immense, and every set in the ring was pronounced first class in their order. After the performance last evening the great show was loaded upon the cars, and at eight o'clock this morning left for Beloit, where it will exhibit this afternoon and evening. There are hundreds in this city who regret that the unfavorable weather prevented them from visiting the show last evening, but all extend their best wishes to Col. Robbins for a successful season. The route of the show for the next ten days will be as follows:

Woodstock, Ill., May 3th.
Elgin, Ill., May 5th.
Rockford, Ill., May 6th.
Freeport, Ill., May 7th.
Dixon, Ill., May 8th.
LaSalle, Ill., May 9th.
Morris, Ill., May 10th.
Joliet, Ill., May 12th.
Michigan City, Ind., May 13th.

When the blood becomes disordered by the poisonous and acid humors of disease, the joints and muscles of the body are frequently the medium by which this condition of the system is manifested. This condition from rheumatism and neuralgia will gladly learn that Athlaphora, the new specific, goes to the seat of disease, drives those foreign substances from the blood, and puts an end to pain. They Try to Destroy a House Belonging to Mr. C. C. Peterson, in the Fifth Ward.

At 8:30 o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was given, which called the department to the little house on the north corner of Pleasant and High streets. The firemen were on hand in double quick time, and soon extinguished the flames. The damage to the house will not exceed two hundred dollars, which is a credit by Mr. C. C. Peterson, and insured in the Hecla insurance company of Madison, for six hundred dollars, in the agency of Messrs. Dimock & Hayner. The house was occupied by the family of Mr. John N. Reed, who had an insurance of one thousand dollars on household goods in the Alliance insurance company of New York, L. B. Kinney agent. It is a difficult matter to estimate the loss on Mr. Reed's goods at this time, but from appearances this morning it would not be far out of the way to place it at three hundred dollars. It may exceed that sum, but probably will not.

The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. The house was on fire in three different rooms, in remote parts of the building, and from the fact that there are no signs of fire connecting those rooms, it is conclusive that it was set on fire in each of these places. We learn from Willie Reed, son of the occupant of the house, that his father is absent from home, in Iowa, and that his mother was also absent during the entire day, visiting at Mr. Jewell's, on West Milwaukee street. Willie says he had not been in the house since morning, and at the time of the fire alarm he was down at the circus grounds. It is said that a large amount of silverware and jewelry, which was placed in a bureau drawer in Mrs. Reed's bedroom, upstairs, is now missing. The silverware and jewelry consisted of a gold watch and chain, gold bracelets, five-dollar gold piece attached, gold neck chain, locket, earrings, gold pencil, solid silver spoons, forks, silver center and several other articles, most of which were presents from Mrs. Reed's mother, and were prized above their value as keepsakes in the family. None of these articles can be found. It is thought by some that the house was entered by a party of thieves, and after securing the plunder they set fire for the purpose of covering up their tracks.

The fire department did some good work in extinguishing the flames, notwithstanding the fact that they left their respective engine house, not knowing the location of the fire, and later setting at the Tallman laboratory, (one engine was compelled, on account of the supply of water, to charge position to the lower bridge. A heavy rain storm prevailed during the time the firemen were at work.
